Itear Sir:—About two years ago I purchased a Manhattan Typewriter and it has been in constant use in my office ever since at least six hours each day. I am very glad to state that the alignment is as perfect now as on the first day it was used.

There have been no remits of any constants and There have been no repairs of any consequence, and the operator using this machine expresses complete satisfaction as to its operation, and states that it has the lightest touch of any she has had. E. G. SIGGERS.

PROGRAM FOR ITS CELEBRATION SEPTEMBER 3 NEXT.

Features of the Federal City is Music Speech and Pictures-The Committees.

Arrangements for the celebration of District of Columbia day at the Pan-American exposition, on September 3, are rapidly nearing completion. The program is in the hands of an executive committee, consisting of ex-Commissioners Douglass and Wight, Mr. John Joy Edson and Mr. Mitchell Dyrenforth, and the work of arranging the minor details of the day is nearly completed.

The committee has scored an important point by securing from the Secretary of the Navy an order sending the entire Marine Band to Buffalo for District day, as part of the marine corps exhibit, and the band will be at the service of the District for the day, undoubtedly adding to the atbe the only day that it will be present during the exposition. The propriety of having the national band take part in the celebration of the national capital day was promptly recognized by the Navy Depart Program Outlined.

Under the program, as now outlined, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, who will all be present for the day will hold a reception in the morning, probably in the United States government building, which will be asked for as the headquarters for the day of the national capital, and the Marine Band will play at this reception. In the afternoon at the Temple of Music, which has been placed at the disposal of the District committee by the management of the exposition, and which will hold several thousand people, simple and dignified exercises will occur. Commissioner Macfarland, as president of the board of Commissioners, will deliver the address of the occasion, on the District of Columbia, having accepted the committee's invitation to do so. Mr. John G. Milburn, president, and Mr. William I Buchanan, director of the Pan-American exposition, have also accepted and will speak. Mrs. Thomas C. Noves, it is hoped. will sing, and the Marine Band will render appropriate selections.

As Congress has made no provision for a District exhibit at the Pan-American exposition, the committee has in contempla tion the exhibition on the evening of Dis-trict day of a series of pictures, thrown on the largest screen by the largest stereopticon in use, representing the principal gov ernment buildings, historical spots and landscape beauties in and about the Discorded Thursday generally east of the trict of Columbia. READJUSTING THE RATES

FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES MAKE NUMBER OF CHANGES.

Result of Organization in District Stated to Be Stable and Uniform Prices.

The process of adjusting the fire insurance rates on business property in the District has been going on for some time and is still incomplete. Since the reorganization of the association of fire insurance companies of the District and the appoint ment of a compact manager changes in the rates of this class have been made as rapidly as the existing policies have expired, or when for any reason application for insurance has been made. The claim is made that the commercial fire rates here needed the application of scientific principles of underwriting, and when the reorganization of the association was completed so as to do away with the undercutting which prevailed largely under forms of relief, it was found that uniform and stable rates could be established. While the changes to be made were not necessarily in each case an advance over the old rates, yet that has largely occurred and business men find that they are paying more for the protection of insurance then they formerly

The reasons underlying these changes vary in individual cases, but outside of the correction of what is termed by insurance men inadequate rates it is asserted that in many instances rates are higher than would otherwise be the case, because of defects in means to guard against fires. Tin-Covered Shutters. For example, it is declared that the use of tin-covered shutters for openings in properties that occupy abutting lots are not common here. They are not required by the building regulations, and so those who put up the buildings do not go to this expense for protection of the property from In the event of fire breaking out in a building it is claimed the flame can easily be communicated to the adjoining buildings or to those on the opposite abutting lots through the openings which are not pro-tected by fireproof shutters. In this way, it is alleged, the risk of one piece of prop-erty is increased by a certain proportion of the risks on other properties which are so situated that fire could easily spread from one to the other.

It is believed that the building regulations should be so amended as to require such means of protection to be a part of every building exposed to danger owing to proximity to other structures.

SUFFERING AND SACRIFICE.

Pathetic Scene Witnessed Today is the Police Court. A pathetic case of infantile suffering and sacrifice was brought to the attention of Judge Scott in the Police Court today. It was that of Annie Chilson, a winsome lass about seven years old, with big, laughing, brown eyes, pink cheeks, wavy hair and trim little figure, who was brought to court by Sergeant Montgomery of the fourth precinct in order that she might be placed in dians. Annie came here from her mother's home in Bradford county, Pa., a few days ago. She was placed in charge of her uncle, Warren Chilson, a blind man, who walks about the streets of the city soliciting the care of the board of children's guar-

Upon her arrival Annie was appointed by her uncle as his guide, and all day long, it is said, she has led the blind man about the hot streets appealing to the charitable to help her and her charge. Yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock Annie and her uncle, hand in hand, were walking down 41/2 street between G and H streets southwest. On the pavement, right in their path as they were about to step across the street, lay a fragment of old "Step up," said Annie, solicitously to the blind man, as they approached the rag, "don't fall over this piece of carpet here."

The uncle, however, either did not hear his guide or else resented her advice, for truding edge of the carpet and almost fell to the pavement. Annie cried aloud in fear and grabbed her uncle to prevent the fall. saved him, but instead of thanking her the old man became furious and began to berate her soundly, it is alleged, for what he called her carelessness. The child stopped and began to cry. Her pitiful wailings attracted a crowd, which soon began to sympathize with her. A policeman was called, and Sergeant Montgomery ran up. Annie told him her story. In court today Montgomery said to Judge Scott that when he arrived on the scene the girl was almost prostrated. Her face was pale, her eyes hurt her and she could hardly stand on account of the intense heat. Annie told the policeman that her uncle had been slapping her and had also twisted her arm. Montgomery led her to the police station and then had her sent to the house of detention. When the uncle and niece were up before Judge Scott today the blind man was told to get out of town at once. The girl was placed in the care of the board of guardians.
